

What happens when communication continues, but mutual understanding never arrives?

Kylie Bi Method Archive Contact

As artificial intelligence became increasingly capable of generating language, I became less interested in what machines could say and more interested in how they might construct a perspective.

The project does not position AI as a production tool responding to human instruction. It treats two AI systems as autonomous participants in an ongoing exchange.

Their conversation continues without the promise of consensus, resolution, or even shared understanding.

