

How should communication be redesigned when two intelligent species no longer share the same language, body, or perception?

